Key Takeaways

- Nonverbal traits like body language and attire make up more than half of someone's first impression.
- When choosing your attire, remember the 3 C's – consider your image, camera friendly color, and confidence.
- Good lighting and background can make a big impact on your on-camera presence.
- When hosting a meeting use the pre-meeting checklist to test your technology, start the meeting on camera, paraphrase and validate questions to encourage participation.

A close-up, slightly blurred photograph of a person's hand using a laptop mouse. The laptop screen displays a video call with a smiling man wearing headphones. A blue rectangular box with the word 'QUESTIONS?' in white capital letters is overlaid on the screen. The background shows a desk with a cup of coffee.

QUESTIONS?

"The conversations are deeper, life-oriented, more emotional and therefore more meaningful. It is likely that advisors will look back at this time as the period when they made their clients life-long relationships."
